

My first flight to.....

"Success doesn't come to you...you go to it." - Marva Collins

This is one phrase will motivate me when ever I make mistakes in my life. I am the best example for this phrase.

I wanted to do something other than my studies, when I came to know that there is a management fest in Surana college, I did not think twice, I just thought of participating in the best manager event in that college.

That was a very first time I was going to attend a management fest, I didnt have any idea about it, all I knew is that I can do it. That self confidence helped me to participate in that event. Winning the competition was not my intention; I went there to learn new things.

The competition was for 2 days, there were 10 rounds to clear. The rounds were very innovative and interesting I loved all the rounds which were given to me. I was very confident that I can clear all the rounds and I did it.

The most important thing which made me to become the winner is my communication skill, my creative and innovative ideas, which impressed all the judges and the result of that I won the competition in my first attempt.

After this competition my confidence is doubled, now I can do any thing and I am even ready to take such challenges in my life.

Thanks to my Institution (DSCMIT) for having given me an opportunity to participate and win the title "THE BEST MANAGER".
